VOL. XXX, No.

DIDSBURY, ALBERTA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1933

$2.00 per Year. 5 cents a copy

Last Call to Register.

Tuesday next is the last day that tenants and relatives will have of the opportunity to register their names on the voters list of the town and school district for the year 1934, as the list will close that day.

The secretary informs us that there are quite a number of people who are eligible, but who have not yet taken the trouble to register.

We are pointing out again that in compliance with the laws it is necessary for all tenants and relatives to register each year, irrespective of whether or not their names appeared on this year's voters list.

Mountain View Council Meeting

The regular meeting of the council of the Mountain View municipality was held Saturday last.

A report was made from the provincial government that two settlers had been moved into the municipal district from the dried-out areas. The secretary was instructed to make inquiries as to the status of the municipality with regard to possible relief in these cases.

The secretary reported that the hall board had set out tests for fire insurance in the district as follows:

Township 31, Range 27 10%
Township 31 and 33, Rge. 1 9%
Township 33, Range 29 7%
Balance of District 8%

The total hall tax in the municipality amounted to $2,539.92.

A letter was read from the hall board advising that if arrears of hall taxes were paid in full before Dec. 15th a rebate of the July 1933 penalty would be allowed, also a discount of 5 per cent. on the current tax.

A grant of $15.00 was made to the Community Hall School Fair. Councilors Archer and Bold were appointed delegates to the municipal convention to be held at Edmonton from November 22nd to 24th.

WEEKLY SERMONETTE

"A man who cannot lead and will not follow invariably obstructs."

Curlers Elect Officers.

The annual meeting of Didsbury Curling Club was held at the C.P.R. depot on Tuesday evening.

The financial report showed the club to be in good position and was adopted as read.

Officers elected for the coming season were:

Hon. Patron, Mr. A. G. Stuber
President, Mr. J. A. McElroy
1st Vice, Mr. F. Kaufman
2nd Vice, Mr. D. Sinclair
Chaplain, Rev. A. J. Mitchell
The ice committee will be composed of the executive.

Membership Committee, Messrs. C. E. Reiber, T. Johnson, G. Julien.

Schedule Committee, Messrs. J. McElroy, and Dr. Lissmer.

The McDonald Brier team, viz. Jack McElroy, D. Edward, E. Kaufman and J. McElroy were honored a vote of thanks for the able manner in which they represented the club in the competition, having won the South Alberta section.

The fees for the season were set at $7.00, and if the club sees fit to split the season the fee for the second half will be $5.00.

The interest shown at the meeting indicates a lively curling season and it was decided that an open bonspiel be held, the date to be set at the next meeting. It was also decided to affiliate with the Royal Canadian Club and without doubt a number of rinks will be groomed for the McDonald Brier Competition.

Local Juvenile Court Established

According to the Alberta Gazette a juvenile court district has been established at Didsbury, the district covering Townships 30 and 31, Ranges 27, 28 and 29, west of the Fourth Meridian, and Ranges 1, 2, 3 and 4, west of the Fifth Meridian.

Mr. Peter G. Johnston has been appointed judge of the juvenile court in this district.

Mr. Edward Clarke, of Vernon, B.C., was visiting his parents here this week.

LOCAL & GENERAL

Teachers, Attention!—We have in stock a specially designed report card for public or rural schools. Call in and see sample.—Didsbury Pioneer.

Annual meeting of the members of Didsbury Agricultural Society will be held at C. E. Reiber's on Friday, October 27th at 2 p.m.

The Olds curlers are making a comeback, and at a meeting held last week they elected officers for the coming season.

Mr. W. Burdell, who sold his household effects at the sale on Saturday, left for Calgary, where he would probably return after a few months.

Herbert Hawkes, along with a number of fight fans, took in the boxing tournament at the Olds Arena on Friday night. They saw there was real fighting and that most of the bouts were terminated by the knockout route.

The municipal secretaries Messrs. McNaughton and Brasso will be in Olds each Tuesday during the rest of the year to facilitate the taxpayers in the northern sections of their municipalities in the payment of taxes.

An interesting series of articles on "Behind the Scenes in Germany," by Matthew H. Holton, are appearing in the Calgary Herald. Mr. Holton is brother-in-law to our townsmen, Mr. J. W. Holton and on a number of occasions has visited Didsbury. He is the European correspondent for the Toronto Daily Star.

Don't forget the play-recital to be given by Miss Theresa M. Siegel in the United Church on Thursday, November 2nd at 8:15 p.m. This play of First London life sends us away with a higher purpose and a greater love for his fellow men. Miss Siegel will be assisted by local musicians. Adults 25c and children 15c.

The harvest dance given by the Old Fellows at Community Hall on Friday evening was one of the most successful dances ever given at that place. There were over 200 present and the dancers were delighted with the music supplied by Houlter's III De Ho Orchestra, of Calgary. Mr. E. L. Mowbray as master of ceremonies kept things moving at a lively pace throughout the whole of the evening.

Liberals Win In Three By-Elections

In three Canadian federal constituencies Liberal colonies were carried to by-election victories this week. Three provinces furnished the locale of the contest—New Brunswick, Quebec and Saskatchewan.

In Restigouche-Madawaska, J. E. Michaud piled up a plurality of 6,322 votes over his nearest opponent P. L. Dube, Conservative standard-bearer, in the Quebec riding of Yarmouche, Aime Boucher led his Conservative rival, Paul Contois.

J. A. MacMillan, Liberal nominee in Mackenzie, Sask., triumphed over three other opponents, among whom was ex-Judge Lewis St. George Stubbis. The former jurist represented the new Co-operative Commonwealth Federation party. Other contenders were H. C. Edgar, Conservative and L. P. McNamee, United Front party.

With all constituencies now definitely determined, the standing in the House of Commons is:

Conservatives 137; Liberals 88; Liberal Progressives 3; Progressive 1; United Farmers of Alberta 2; Labor 3; Independent Labor 1; Independent 3; Vacant 1. The vacant seat is South Oxford, Ont.

Hunter Valley To Start No. 2

Announcement of tentative location of the No. 2 well for the Hunter Valley Oil Co. was made at the annual meeting of the company held recently, and indicated the confidence in the company's acreage held by the directors of the company. There is a confidence expressed of the prospects, insofar that designs are now being studied and estimates being prepared for the erection of a 150 ft. bridge across the Red Deer river to enable to prepare a site for the second well, the proposed location being about one mile to the south.—Olds Gazette.

Bible Society Holds Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Didsbury branch of the South Alberta Auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Society was convened in Knox United Church on Sunday evening after the service at which Rev. H. D. Marr, district secretary, brought the message.

In the absence of the president, Mr. D. Duppel, Rev. A. J. Mitchell, 1st vice-president presided.

The treasurer's report showed that $165.66 had been collected for the work during the past year. A vote of thanks was moved to the collectors for the good work they had done.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Rev. A. Frank
1st Vice, Rev. A. J. Mitchell
2nd Vice, Rev. V. K. Snyder
3rd Vice, Rev. H. J. Wood
4th Vice, Rev. A. D. Currie
5th Vice, Rev. C. J. Hallman
Sec. - Treas., Mr. J. V. Berscht

The following collectors were appointed for the coming year:

Mrs. Burkholder
Mrs. Elah Shantz
Mrs. L. Wrigglesworth
Mrs. E. N. Baettger
Mrs. J. L. Clarke
Mrs. S. S. Clarke
Mrs. H. D. Bacher
Mrs. J. H. Lowrie

A letter of appreciation was ordered sent to the retiring president Mr. D. Duppel for his many years of faithful service.

The Society circulated 10,017,470 copies of the scriptures during the past year. There were twelve new translations issued, 1 for Africa; 6 for Asia; 1 for Europe and 1 for South America. This work of circulation is carried on by 1,000 colporteurs, some thirty of them working in Canada. The work is supported by gifts from Christian people.

The income of the Society has been greatly decreased during the depression, but the cause is worthy and should receive continued support.

Attacks On Hudson Bay Route

Some fairly strong language is indulged in by the Financial Post of Toronto in its opposition to the Hudson Bay Railway, and in support of a demand by it that the route be abandoned. A recent attack by the Financial Post on this western outlet for western products may well be quoted. It says:

"The colossal failure of that notorious contractor's racket, the Hudson Bay Railway, was bluntly demonstrated last year when the Government had to provide free storage in the Churchill elevator to induce any grain at all to move out over the route."

"An equally forcible demonstration of the present uneconomic character of the route has been provided this year. The Government announced an intention of charging the regular tolls at the elevator, tolls which were the lowest of those imposed by Government order at any elevators throughout Canada. No grain was offered for shipment. Even the grain growing interests of Western Canada, who had for two generations advocated the opening of the Bay route in order to reduce their costs of shipping grain to Europe, refused to ship grain; they knew that the established routes via the Great Lakes and the Pacific Coast were more economical."

"Political pressure was brought on the Government to repeat the satire of last year when a picture of success of the route was made. It was finally decided to reduce storage rates at Fort Churchill from the usual figure of almost one cent a month to the ridiculously low figure of one cent for the whole period from now to the end of August next. This had the effect of paying a cash bonus out of the Dominion treasury to those who would store grain at Churchill. Now the elevator has been filled up. On-to-the-Bay enthusiasts can declare that the route is a success. But the taxpayer is paying a heavy bill for this child's play. If Ottawa made the terms attractive enough there would be people willing to load grain in bags and canoe it down the Mackenzie River to the Arctic Ocean and then to fly it over the north pole to continental markets."

"The country would be infinitely better off and taxation could be reduced if the route were completely abandoned and the expensive attempts to bonus traffic to use it were abandoned."

"The Hudson Bay route is not a business enterprise but a hybrid of a white elephant and a political sacred cow. As such it has the 'protection' of political leaders of both parties, their eyes cocked to the western vote in the next election."

"But the huge losses and the charge for the bonus to favored grain operators who have been paid to use the route are a big item in every tax payment made by every citizen."

"The argument of the Financial Post is simply this,—that it would be better and cheaper to abandon the route, leave the elevator at Churchill empty than to fill it up with grain on which only $20,000 in storage charges will be paid. How, it may be asked, is an empty elevator to cost the taxpayer less than a full one?"

"The Hudson Bay route is a new route. It is in its infancy, and it has been thrown open to traffic at a time of the greatest trade depression in the history of the world. It must, and will, be given a fair chance to prove itself."

How many scores of millions were poured out by the Government of Canada for years, and how many concessions were granted, to demonstrate to the shipping world the feasibility of an ocean port at Montreal, a thousand miles inland from the sea, and located on a river that is ice-bound half the year? How many more millions have been poured out to create a harbor at Toronto, and upon canals at Sault Ste. Marie, Welland, and along the St. Lawrence, in order that upper lakes shipping might get to Toronto and Montreal? The Financial Post does not object to these millions being spent to benefit the Eastern shipping route, but it yells like murder because a mere fraction of the sums so expended is now spent on a purely Western route."

It was Government expenditures for which Western people are taxed as well as the people of East, that made the port of Montreal and provided business for Toronto. Had those expenditures not been made, would the Government not nursed these routes in their experimental stages, the development of today would have been realized."

Toronto's financial paper opposed the Hudson Bay route from its inception. The first line of attack was that successful commercial navigation of Hudson Bay and Straits was an impossibility. That theory was exploded, and the feasibility of the route established. Now, because of certain abnormal conditions which have resulted in a rate war on the Great Lakes, and the lowering of rates to such a point that it is cheaper, for the time being, to ship by that route than through Churchill, Toronto demands the abandonment of the Western route. Let it once be abandoned and the Great Lakes shippers will, with that competition removed, quickly advance their rates."

The last bait to leave Churchill, and it will be the tenth this season, will carry a cargo consisting of some hundreds of thousands of bushels of wheat, hundreds of bags of Western cattle, 20 tons of Saskatchewan produced honey, four carloads containing 150,000 feet of Saskatchewan produced lumber. This will be the first time Saskatchewan produce has been shipped to England by any route, and the first time either honey or cattle have gone out via Churchill. All of which goes to prove the statement that the route is only in its infancy."

The Financial Post has always professed to believe in Government protection for infant industries. Let it be fair now and give this lone Western infant a chance to live, and given that it will be the tenth this season, the truth is that the interests which the Toronto financial paper represents does not want it to thrive and grow. Our prediction is, nevertheless, that it must survive—by itself."

Three-Year Search Rewarded

Miles Of Cable Line Have Been Recovered From Ocean Floor

Its pug-like prow coated with rust and scars, a little grey ship steamed quietly into the shelter of Halifax harbor and docked alongside the Western Union cable company pier. There was no open welcome for ship or crew, though they had just returned from a great victory over the elements and completed a task started three years ago.

Put down in the deep hold of the cable ship "Lord Kelvin" was fathoms of mutilated and corroded cable that bore evidence of the long search for a disrupted communication line. Month after month the "Lord Kelvin" had walloped in the Atlantic as her crew grappled along the ocean bottom for the line, torn from its bed by the disastrous tidal wave that swept the southern coast of Newfoundland the winter of 1917. The "Lord Kelvin" had completed the search, begun the following spring.

"It was just another 'job' for the crew and the master of the 'Lord Kelvin', Capt. M. H. Blomner, spoke lightly of it. He was more anxious to talk of the scientific aspect of the search. The cable, recovered more than three miles from its original course, was located only after 20 attempts over a distance of some 80 miles. One by one miles of cable, however, was recovered."

Captain Blomner said that during a seagull like the one that shook the Newfoundland coast, the earth tremors were very rapid, causing expansion of the earth surface and subsequent increased tension on a cable. Often, too, cables were buried during such eruptions and usually lay permanently while other times the heavy line would be carried from its bed, sometimes for miles.

Much of the recovered line, he said, was useless, for it was badly torn and filled with small stones and grit that had severed the wires.

Investor's Grave Marked

Mourning To Canadian Who Evoked Process Of Kerosene

An inconspicuous granite grave in Camp Hill cemetery at Halifax, Nova Scotia, has been the scene of the large oil companies to show the final resting place of Abraham Gesner, M.D., D.F.G.S., who gave to America kerosene for a lighting fuel. The grave of Dr. Gesner has been graced by a tall black granite monument, "erected as a token of appreciation of his important contribution to the oil industry."

Briefly, the inscription on the stone tells of Dr. Gesner's work. It reads:

"Abraham Gesner, M.D., D.F.G.S., Geologist."

"Born at Cornwallis, Nova Scotia, May 2, 1797."

"Died at Halifax, April 29, 1864."

"His treatise on the Geology and Mineralogy of Nova Scotia, 1836, was one of the earliest works dealing with those subjects in this province, and about 1852 he was American inventor of the process of kerosene."

Excursions Were Popular

English Schoolboys Travelled Far Afield During Summer

Excursions of public schoolboys of the United Kingdom to far-off places during the summer were very popular, these including a tour of 11 schoolboys to the Maritime Provinces of Canada, Newfoundland and the coast of Labrador, with J. Guise, a schoolmaster at Winchester, in charge, and an expedition party of 30 to the Arctic Circle, with Commander G. Murray Levick, R.N., a member of Scott's last Antarctic expedition, in charge. In the latterly waters of Finnish Lapland these 30 schoolboys split up under three leaders and penetrated uncharted waters with only the compass and the Arctic lights to guide them.

Survivor Of Enckeow

Old-timer living survivor of the siege of Enckeow, Charles George Palmer of Dunsmuir, B.C., was still hale and hearty on his 80th birthday, Sept. 24. Mr. Palmer was not quite 10 years old when the siege, the historic incident in the Indian mutiny, occurred in September, 1857. Only eight other survivors of the siege are alive.

Highway Motor Accidents

Everything Considered It Is Surprising There Are Not more

One is appalled by the never-ending succession of motor accidents on the highways these week-ends. But is it really surprising? From our observation of the traffic, the remarkable thing is that there are not more mishaps.

Take a drive along any public highway after dark and as you turn out to avoid a passing car you see the forms of pedestrians walking as far out of the dark pavement as they dare, as if to proclaim their right to a place on the pavement. An admirable sentiment in a way, but fearfully dangerous. Another "good" candidate for the Suicide Club is the bicyclist riding along the busy highway in the dark. One has to be keen-sighted to avoid these gentry, of whom there are many. Then there are the cars with one light and the cars without. All lights. Even worse still the bicycles without lights. They take big chances. Even should their occupants come through an accident with a whole skin, they would be legally responsible for the well-being of those they clash with.

It appears that there must be much preaching and teaching and public warning before people will take even a moderate degree of caution. Looking to the future it would seem as if something should be done in the schools to train the upcoming generation in the need of caution on the highways. Would it not be well for the Department to require school children to familiarize themselves with a code of rules for safety? The day-by-day accident list surely challenges the authorities to take every possible step to curb its fatal progress. St. Mary's Journal-Argus.

A Chinese Methuselah

Li Chung Yen Who Died Recently Claimed To Be 256 Years Old

Amazing longevity was attributed to a Chinese who has just died at Kiao Shing, where he was born in 1072. Two hundred and fifty-six years old. The deceased Methuselah, who was called Li Chung Yen, had a number of wives the last of whom predeceased him, leaving behind him and seventy grandchildren. His youngest great grandson is now seventy years old. Chinese tradition tends to confirm the dead man's age as being 256. Li could only account for his longevity by the fact that on one of his youth trips to the mountains to search for herbs he found and ate a rare plant which he believed gave him long life.

Reception Almost Too Perfect

Stolen Radio Astonished Thief By Broadcasting His Description

A startling coincidence had amusing consequences. A man walked in to a Charlotte, North Carolina, radio store, carrying a radio which was fitted with a short wave adapter, under his arm. He wanted to sell it. He put the set down and started to "tune it up" to give the radio dealer an idea of its splendid reception. The reception was perfect—so perfect, in fact, that the man caught his breath, dashed out to the street and had not been seen since. For the broadcast was a police description of the recovering set which had been stolen only a short time before. Within a few minutes the radio was returned to the owner.

Moose Seen Farther North

Strange phenomena observed by frontiersmen along the sub-Arctic and Yukon Valley is the gradual spreading north of moose herds. The animals have been seen far north in the western country. Within the past few years the rabbits have practically disappeared from many regions south of the Yukon, and it is the belief that the moose have found the area most suitable to browsing since the rabbits disappeared.

Stressed Safety First

English Town Staged Program As Warning Against Accidents

If dramatizing safety first has the effects hoped for, Reigate will be the safest town in England. Adopting as its slogan, "Make safety pay every day," the town staged an elaborate programme. A salient feature was the staging of mock accidents at the sharpest curves and steepest hills. Distressed and smash-up cars, decorated with warning notices, acted as grim warnings. Every prominent building exhibited banners carrying a red triangle and cautionary notices. In a public square there was a demonstration of automatic signaling. One evening was devoted to first aid to "victims."

Scientific Evidence Indicates Better Moisture Conditions For Western Wheat Growing Areas

Scientific evidence indicating that western Canada is at present in a period of rising weather values as far as crop-growing conditions are concerned has been assembled and is published in the 1933 Canadian Year Book.

The evidence, though "by no means certain," suggests the probability that the scientists' curve representing crop conditions is mounting.

This is the cautious conclusion reached by A. J. Connor, Dominion Climatologist, in an article in the Year Book on the results of weather research on the prairies.

The research work, pointing the way to accurate forecasting of crop-growing conditions in the west, includes preparation and compilation of weather statistics covering the years from the early 1850's to the present.

The rise and fall of favorable crop weather in western Canada was subjected to statistical analysis. In this way the folklore of climate that is more or less common knowledge on the prairies, in such matters as "weather cycle," has been subjected to the impartial scrutiny of science in an attempt to uncover its underlying principles.

The basic principle of the findings is that the western weather cycle is irregular, says the Regina Leader-Post. Exact forecasting of conditions for a specified year is not possible with present data. But the rising and waning of moisture and heat, vital factors in the growing of crops has been reduced to a set of statistics and charts, and related to the sun spot intervals, long recognized by scientists as having important influence on life on this planet, mankind and man's occupations.

Here is the story, as told by Mr. Connor in the Canada Year Book:

"The scarcity of rainfall in western Canada in recent years has been a reason for frequent requests that the Meteorological Service should supply the figures of annual rainfall and snowfall for a long period of years. Some of our correspondents have suggested that there was some law of periodicity governing the precipitation of western Canada.

"It has also been urged by our correspondents that the success of western crops was not totally dependent upon the weather of the current year, but also upon the weather of the immediate preceding years. Although several suggestions of this nature have been propounded, they may be briefly summarized by saying that two dry years in succession have a more detrimental effect upon the crop of the second year than a single contemporary dry season and that a good third year does not compensate for two previous dry years."

Figures from representative stations in western Canada, available over long periods, were submitted to statistical treatment.

These stations were Edmonton, Calgary, Medicine Hat, Swift Current, Battleford, Prince Albert, Qu'Appelle, Minnedosa, and Winnipeg.

"Reference to the table shows that the individual annual values are subject to very large fluctuations of much shorter intervals than the sunspot period. These shorter fluctuations are of such violence that they have a very large immediate effect upon the crops of the corresponding year.

"Turning now to the group of three minima in 1890, 1905, 1914, 1919 and 1931. These give intervals of 5, 10, 9, 5 and 12 years. It must be admitted, however, that major maxima are more difficult to recognize than in Alberta. From 1895 to 1919 is approximately twice the sunspot period and that from 1919 to 1931 is very close to the sunspot interval. Looking at the maxima we find them in 1892, 1901, 1916, 1921 and 1927. All three stations do not come to a major maximum in the same year, so that the actual intervals between peaks are somewhat doubtful. On the whole the case for solar influence in Saskatchewan is rather weak.

"The last group of three consists of Qu'Appelle in southern Saskatchewan and two stations in Manitoba. At these three stations the smooth curves on the whole do not show such large fluctuations. The maxima are in about 1891, 1901, 1923, with somewhat doubtful peaks about 1912 and 1927. It is possible to pick the peaks so as to get intervals approximating those of the sun-spot intervals but the result is not very satisfactory. There are minima about 1880, 1900, 1910, 1920 and 1930, so that if we neglect the fairly well marked minima about 1894 and 1928 we have a rather better case for solar influence.

"Four sun-spot maxima have occurred during the time for which we have data. The data, thus analyzed, indicate that the weather in the Canadian west from the farmers' standpoint may be expected to reach a peak of beneficence about sun-spot minimum; to fall sharply in the two succeeding years; then rise to a secondary peak one year before the sun-spot maximum; fall steeply at maximum sun-spots and the following year; thereafter to rise slowly to a peak at the next sun-spot minimum."

Finally, Mr. Connor comes to the conclusion that accurate prediction of yield for any particular year is out of the question. "The relation of sun-spots numbers," he concludes, "to wheat weather and to wheat yields is of no value for predicting the yield of any particular year, but does appear to indicate an irregular cyclical march of these variables (heat and moisture) through the years. Since we have given the annual values of both precipitation and summer temperature, there are sufficient data for those who wish to consider this matter further."

Man Without A Country

Originally From Italy, Served In British Army During The War

A man with a triple nationality and a career which has puzzled the heads of state departments in three countries sailed for America from Liverpool the other day in the "Laconia."

He is Pasquale Graziado, a thick-set man of 47, and his case has aroused national interest. He is a native of Naples, but lived in England for 23 years, and married a South Shields girl, with whom he went to America. After being there for seven years he was deported to Italy because he did not produce a passport.

On his return to his native country he was refused work because he had preferred to serve in the British army during the war.

Rejected by his own country, he went to South Shields to his wife's relatives and for some months has been waiting for three countries to settle his fate in regard to residence.

Now he has been ordered to leave for Italy under threat of deportation. He is going to America, but can only enter under non-quota arrangements.

"I fought for your flag for four years," he stated on his departure, "but I am not allowed to stay under the protection of your flag, for which I was willing to lay down my life."

Graziado's case has been energetically fought by the British Legion. "I am grateful for all they have done," he said before leaving, "and to the home secretary for his leniency."

Taking Part In Play

Lord Duncannon Cast As Romeo In Presentation At Ottawa

Lord Duncannon, son of the Governor-General, will be cast in the part of Romeo in "Shakespeare's" "Romeo and Juliet," presented by the Ottawa Drama League during the Christmas vacation. The supporting cast will be drawn from the principal little theatres of Canada.

Rupert Harvey, one of the foremost Shakespearean producers in the United Kingdom, will be guest producer. He visited Canada last season as adjudicator of the Dominion drama festival competition.

McMillan asked the old Eskimo, his friend, in the light in the white silence of the Arctic night, why he thought we were here on earth. The Eskimo said, "I have given much thought to that. I believe it is that we may help one another."

Problem Of Keen Competition With Low Wage Countries By Reason Of Cheap Production

Improved Radio Code

Includes Medical Section For Merchant Shipping And Air Services

The new international code of signals for shipping, coming into force on January 1, 1934, strikes an unexpectedly human note. Sick and injured seamen will be able to get treatment prescribed by radio.

Volume 2 of the new code provides for the first time an official international wireless telegraphy code issued specially for the use of the merchant shipping and air services. This embodies a medical section with a complete case-stating system for cases of illness or injury and a list of standard quarantine messages.

The new code involves numerous alterations of various kinds. A complete change is made in the method of allocating visual signal letters to ships. All ships fitted with wireless will in future have the same sign call for visual and radio signalling. Ships not fitted with radio will use signal letters taken from the Radio Sign Call series.

The result of the changes generally will be greater simplicity in signalling at sea. Already signalmen have been practising with the new code for some time. When the change-over comes, the men responsible for sending and receiving messages will be thoroughly familiar with the new system and there will be no confusion.

Iowa Farmer Made Thresher

Constructed Efficient Machine Entirely From Odds And Ends

Working in his spare time over a period of two years, William Spurling, farmer near Clinton, Iowa, has constructed an efficient threshing machine entirely from odds and ends.

This device, with which he recently threshed three acres of oats, is propelled by a 2 1/2 horse-power engine. It includes parts of corn grinders, a Haystack, an old Crowe engine, a Ford, a Waterloo engine and a buggy, but no parts of a regular threshing machine.

An improvement on Spurling's home-made thresher is that the blower is not connected with the chute. Whereas an ordinary blower blows chaff and waste onto and to the straw pile, Spurling's blows it into a separate pile.

For this reason, he said, his three acres yielded 75 bushels of oats. With an ordinary thresher, it would not have been more than 70, he said.

It operates too slowly, however, for large oat or wheat crops, he added.

More than 17,000 French people have visited London, England, on one-day excursions this year.

Columbia has just placed a tax of 20 per cent, on all drafts drawn in favor of residents abroad.

Canada, the United States and Britain are particularly affected by one of the greatest problems the world has yet had to face, says Herbert Bailey in a special United News Cable. It is the problem of competition between countries accustomed to a high standard of living and countries which by reason of cheap production costs and low wages can outbid them, not only in the markets of the world but in home markets as well.

Canada, as Prime Minister Bennett has revealed, has already discovered what Russian timber competition means in the British market because of Russian state production. European countries are now building tariffs against neighbors who have a lower standard of living.

Meanwhile, Britain's greatest anxiety is Japanese competition. The Japanese frankly admit that owing to low production costs, part of which they claim is due to the modernity of their machinery but mostly to cheaper living among the workers, they can now defeat Britain in the markets of the world on competitive products. In this connection, Japan has already dealt several blows to Lancashire cotton products in Indian markets, owing to the cheapness of their goods and also their willingness to supply what customers want. They are now attacking the British silk industry and are even invading Britain with cheap silk goods at prices with which no British firm can compete.

Austria and South Africa are likewise complaining of unfair Japanese competition and are taking remedial measures which, however, are not likely to prove effective.

British merchants accuse Japanese traders with issuing propaganda designed to disrupt the empire.

A responsible South African newspaper has published a facsimile of a trade circular distributed by a Japanese firm throughout India in which the firm says: "It is one of our sub-line missions to emancipate 300,000,000 Indian people who groan under British tyranny and in the cause of justice lend our hands on behalf of their independence."

This comes on the eve of negotiations between Japanese, British and Indian business men at Simla to discuss schemes for the division of markets. Japanese commercial authorities declare they know nothing of such circulars. Nevertheless, the report is given credence in London.

Ben Tillett, one of the foremost leaders of British labor, writing in the Daily Herald, says: "The Labor Party must attach more importance to world factors than it does. Chinese, Indian and Japanese industrial conditions are convulsing the world with revolutionary changes in industry and social life. The East may rise to be a monster and the magnet of wealth and production."

It is this aspect of the fight between the high standard of living in the West against the low standard of living in the East which is now engendering attention as one of the world's gravest problems.

On The Alert.

When the United Church in its Conferences (national and provincial) devotes time to a discussion of economics and social legislation, a storm of criticism rises. The Church must not presume to consider worldly matters, say the critics. It must not concern itself with the conditions of life among its people, nor, whether or not these conditions may be remedied.

The conferences, however, see that the Church is a great national influence, and that its influence is in proportion to its realization of the times in which it lives. For the past three years religious leaders have seen the waste, suffering and frustration of their people. Naturally they have turned to an examination of the causes of the condition. This examination has led to certain conclusions, and a very specific stand has been taken during the past two months by conferences in Ottawa, Montreal, the Maritimes, and all over Canada.

Development of social Christianity appears to be the ideal back of the resolution emanating from these gatherings of the United Church. Committees have been appointed to study legislation for the purpose of revealing faults which lie at the basis of social structure, and which may be remedied. Recent resolutions have called for legislative control to eliminate waste and to protect the primary producer and consumer of milk and bread, and demanding that the investigation into the coal combine of the cost be made known to the Canadian people.

As only one instance of the data which brought forth these resolutions the following gives light on the Combines Investigation, as it affects bread prices in the East. "The spread between the wholesale cost of flour and the retail price of bread was 2.3 cents in 1913; in 1930 it was 5.1 cents per pound. Between 1925 and 1930, when wheat and flour fluctuated freely, the high level of bread prices was generally unchallenged. Investigation places emphasis on high distributing costs. One explanation of these costs lies in the use of high pressure sales methods by larger companies. They begin with a producing capacity far in excess of their market, and by all the arts of salesmanship seek to increase volume. But this does not mean lower prices. The mill-controlled bakeries in 1929 did 79 1/2 per cent of the entire business in the communities in which they operate, and the capacity of their plants is triple their output, or in excess of the total consumption of the Dominion. Until 1925 there were few chains of bakeries in Canada. Since then there are at least 11 chains, nine being under the control of four milling companies, while two are operating thirteen bakeries all in Ontario. It might be expected that chain bakeries would buy from the parent milling company at much less cost than the small bakery, but this apparently is not the case. The Combines have not been followed by reduced selling cost.

"The inquiry on milk report points out that the price paid the producer of fluid milk is fixed and controlled by the distributor, the farmer receiving no equitable share of the money paid by the consumer. Overlapping of delivery and collecting routes is a serious factor. Although milk prices to the producer have been reduced to an extremely low level, and industry generally has lapsed in recent years, salaries and returns to executive and operating officials and shareholders have been very largely maintained. Overcapitalization exists (a) by purchasing or absorbing other companies at enhanced valuation; (b) by goodwill; (c) by splitting of shares. Sale and distribution of whole-milk products is getting into the hands of fewer and larger companies, with no evidence of benefit to producer or consumer."

When the Church begins to attack such homely problems as prices of bread, milk, coal, and why these prices, it is coming very close to the real lives of the people whom it seeks to reach.

"Kritiks' Korner."

We understand that the highway through town is to be gravelled. This is good news, if true. Not only the main street, but every street should be gravelled. It is not much use having an all-weather highway unless one can get to it.

We profess to be trying to make this a better place for our children to live in. Do we mean now or after we are dead? How many of us have cleaned the snow from our walks these stormy mornings in time for the children to get to school? If we cannot take care of this ourselves, then the Council should make an arrangement to have them cleaned.

Only eight more weeks to Xmas! What about having a Community Christmas tree—and some lights—and some decorations?—We need a little brightness and cheer to help us forget the depression.

Too bad that the snow has come before Hallow-e'en and covered up the old junk and rubbish, otherwise we might have collected it up and put it where the kids could see it and gotten it carried away free of charge.

Wheat Puts Better Finish on Hogs

Major Freeborn, of the Dominion
Livestock Branch, is of the opinion that a too exclusively oats ration is one of the reasons why pigs do not grade higher than they do. "Wheat," remarks the major, "seems to be regarded as something too nice to feed to a pig, and barley does not enter the picture at all for quite considerable farming areas."

The Grand Prairie Herald passes on a criticism of Peace River hogs, which go to the Edmonton market after being fed on oats. It is said that they have lived too long when found at top weights, are coarse-framed, lack finish and are frequently soft and flabby, as well as carrying very spreadly bellies at times.

This year, when there is a great deal of frozen wheat in the country, the opinion is that it might better be used to put a hard finish on hogs—than sent to the elevators. It would probably be wiser to use a small proportion of No. 1 wheat for this purpose than to grow and finish hogs on oats alone. A little wheat, barley or hulls, cuts is good in the growing ration for young pigs.

Flesh-Eating Dinosaur's Remains Found in Alberta

Discovery of an almost complete flesh-eating dinosaur in the "bad lands" of Central Alberta along the banks of the Red Deer river, was disclosed with the arrival of specimens of prehistoric monsters for the Royal Ontario Museum at Toronto.

The discoveries were made during the summer months by Professor L. Sternberg of the museum. Finding of the flesh-eating dinosaur's bones was declared by museum officials to be of extraordinary importance. The head is almost complete.

In addition to the carnivorous dinosaur, Prof. Sternberg and his helpers have shipped the skull of a crested dinosaur, the skull of a horned dinosaur and two other specimens of trachodonts.

Beware of Peddlers!

A case of considerable interest was tried by Magistrate E. H.
Jones, K. C., recently, when R. L.
Watt was found guilty of obtaining money under false pretences and was sentenced to 30 days' imprisonment without the option of a fine.

Watt's procedure appeared to be to book orders for shoes and collect for them in the name of the Cadillac Shoe Co., of Edmonton, a firm with which he had no connection. He visited Nordag in January of this year and took a number of orders for shoes and collected the money, but no deliveries were made. A

August 2nd and he was apprehended at Powell River, B.C. and brought

Only Thing Keeping Ex-Kaiser Away From Berlin

The ex-kaiser, now at Doorn, is ready to return to Berlin when he has the subject of the ex-kaiser and Kaiser. He made this statement to the Rev. L. Thomas, vicar of an English church in London.

The Rev. Mr. Thomas is an old friend. He has returned from a short visit to Doorn, during which he was the guest of the ex-kaiser and Kaiser. He says that the ex-kaiser has no more use for the Kaiser. Before the war, according to the Kaiser, Wilhelm was not unfriendly toward him. But during the war he behaved so badly that now her husband has not a good word to say for them.

Worth Remembering

Ruskin Warned People Against Seeking For Amusement

What the great author and poet Ruskin once wrote about amusement is well worth remembering—"Never seek for amusement, but be always ready to be amused. The best thing has play in it, the slightest word, when your hands are busy and your heart is free. But if you make the aim of your life amusement, the day will come when all the absurdities of a pantomime will not bring you an honest laugh."

SAVED IMPORTED DRESS

"After a little wearing, a lovely green voile—imported dress lost color so completely that it was not wearable. A friend who had admired it asked me why I wasn't wearing it any more. On my return, the reason, she advised dying it and recommended Diamond Dyes. To make a long story short, it turned out beautifully. I have a lovely new dress that really cost just 10¢ the price of one package of Diamond Dyes."

"I have since used Diamond Dyes for both tinting and dyeing. They do either equally well, I am not an expert dyer but I never have a failure with Diamond Dyes. They seem to be made so they always go on smoothly and evenly. They never spot, streak or run, and I never know the things I dye with Diamond Dyes are ruined at all!"

Saskatchewan Relief

Voluntary Relief Committee Organized For Present Season

The Saskatchewan Voluntary Relief Committee is again in operation in a very active way and expects to receive large contributions of fruits, vegetables, grain, hedges, clothing, etc., for distribution to the less fortunate citizens in the dried out areas.

The personnel of the Committee, which is non-denominational and non-political, is the same as last year and consists of the following: W. W. Champ, Chairman; Mrs. H. R. Horner, Mrs. R. R. Fawcett, Mrs. W. E. Cameron; Mrs. M. J. Matthews; Monsieur Janssen; Rev. W. H. Aleck; Rev. Dr. Denson; Rev. J. B. Fritz; Mr. T. H. Moffett; Mr. W. F. Marshall; Mr. Arthur Wood.

The results obtained by this Committee last year were very satisfactory. Citizens throughout the areas where crops were plentiful contributed liberally for the benefit of the less fortunate in districts where crops were a failure. It is to be hoped that you can contribute in a similar way that the work of this committee will be continued and extended this year.

The Committee have already written to the heads of the Churches, Service Clubs, Fraternal Organizations and other public bodies and to spirited citizens in the cities and towns in the districts where contributions may be expected requesting that they make immediate requests for contributions.

The first week in October was set aside as "Contribution Week." As this week immediately preceded Thanksgiving Day, it was hoped that the response to the appeal for voluntary contributions would be so great that October 9th would result in a real Thanksgiving for all the residents of our Province.

Last year, in addition to large contributions of vegetables, grain, clothing, cash, etc., from our own province, the Committee was fortunate in receiving large quantities of fruit from British Columbia and Ontario and would request that anyone throughout the province having friends or kindred organizations in either of the two provinces named, from whom contributions might be expected, kindly convey the names to our Committee so that they may be communicated immediately.

The cash contributions received last year were used for the purpose of buying wool and other materials which were made into garments by women's organizations in the relief areas and distributed by the Committee among the needy residents.

The transportation companies are to be commended for a very important part they are taking in their endeavour to relieve distress among the citizens in the relief areas as they have again granted free freight privileges, that is free transportation on all canned, dried and fresh fruits and vegetables in carload lots and also clothing in the Dominion to the relief areas. The railway companies, however, cannot handle any shipments excepting through the Relief Commission, nor can they grant stop-over privileges. That is all cars must be loaded or unloaded at one point.

Investigation Of Penal System Asked By Church Bods

"A thorough investigation and study by an independent and representative commission of all our penal and reformatory institutions," was asked by the Council for Social Service of the Church of England in Canada.

The resolution, moved by Right Rev. J. A. Richardson, Bishop of Fredericton, seeks a probe of all such institutions "whether Dominion, provincial or local, and of the entire system of dealing with delinquents and criminals."

Interesting Attempt To Solve Hibernation Secret

Yellowstone Park Official Will Study Winter Habits Of Bears

What bears do when they hibernate during the winter has always been a source of speculation to naturalists. An interesting attempt to discover these secrets is to be made next winter by Frank Childs of Yellowstone Park.

He will try to persuade a yearling black bear, one of the least vicious species found in the park, to take up lodging for the winter in a specially prepared bunker den. The den is a fifty-gallon barrel, lined with straw and hay, and apparently connected with the surface only by an entrance used by the bear.

Actually there is also a kind of periscope, or listening tube, by means of which Childs hopes to answer these questions, among others:

Do yearling bears nurse or feed in the hibernation period?

Do they sleep soundly all of the time or wake up from time to time? Do they breathe normally?

What is their general disposition?

Mr. Childs will carry on his "key-hole" inquiry from mid-November until some time in March, when the hibernation period ends. From his study he believes will come valuable information differing from that gleaned by studies of captive bears.

Dan McCann, the G.P.R. naturalist in the Rockies, stated that when the bears came out of their long sleep they were as thin as rakes and correspondingly weak. They gradually fattened as time wore on, and when they were due to begin their next hibernation they were big-fat. They lived upon their own fat throughout the winter months.

Camels and dromedaries also live on their own fat when necessary. Their well-known humps are really fat, and if they have to go without food for a long time the hump gradually grows smaller as it is absorbed in their bodies.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

A Powerful Influence

Canadian Institute Of International Affairs Did Good Work

"We can render no more excellent service than to promote these two great organizations—the British Commonwealth and the League of Nations," said Hon. Newton W. Rowell in closing the first British Commonwealth Relations Conference at Toronto.

Mr. Rowell ranked the personal friendships formed and the frank statements made on their various points of view as among the gathering's most valuable results. It was wise, he thought, that such a conference be unofficial.

"We have no constitution and we do not want one," said Sir Herbert Samuel in moving a vote of thanks to those responsible for the conduct of the conference. He had a special word of commendation for the Canadian Affairs, which he said was rapidly becoming a powerful influence.

The Real Farmer

One Who Keeps Some Livestock Around The Homestead

One of the most pernicious things in western agriculture has been the ease with which wealth has been obtained from what production, Hon. George Hodley, Minister of Agriculture, said in address at Edmonton.

Mr. Hodley recommended a turning away from the present production to livestock production.

"Wheat production presupposes five or six months of holidays," he said. "However, you see the real farm home on the land of the man who owns stock. It is different from the place to which a man returns from California to plant his wheat."

A Fair Exchange
Brown bled over the garden fence. "I say, old fellow," he said to his neighbor. "I understand that you have Thompson's new rake."

The neighbor nodded.
"Good," said Brown. "If you'll let me borrow that occasionally, I'll let you use Jones' roller whenever you need it."

Having many unique features, a clock built by Daniel Quare, inventor of the repeating watch, was sold recently in London, England, for $1,100.

CRAWLING ABOUT WITH LUMBAGO

There is some useful information for anyone troubled with that uncomfortable complaint, lumbago. A woman writes—

"For years I suffered from lumbago. During wet weather, I could only turn in bed with great effort and pain. I did, and I have taken them ever since, with the result that I hardly ever get a hint of lumbago these days."—(Mrs.) J.P.C.

Why is it that Kruschen is so effective in keeping lumbago away? Simply because it goes right down to the root of the trouble and removes the cause, which is an impure blood-stream. It cleanses the blood, keeps the bloodstream pure and vigorous by promoting a clockwork regularity of all the organs of elimination.

May Solve Egyptian Mystery

Young English Explorer Seeking For Origin Of Nubian Kings

A young explorer has left Britain for Egypt on a quest which, if it fails, will leave one of the great mysteries of history unsolved for ever.

Walter Emery, of Kimberley Drive, Great Crosby, near Liverpool, is the young man, and his task takes him to the mighty tombs of a mystery race of warrior kings who dominated the Nubian Valley in the days of Al-Fird the Great.

The most famous archaeologists in the world have had to confess their ignorance of the origin of these rulers, whom they know as "The X Kings."

Mr. Emery, who is acting for the Egyptian Government, has only three months in which to solve the problem. At the end of that time the tombs will be submerged for ever as the bottom of a gigantic reservoir which forms part of the completed Aswan dam scheme.

Mr. Emery said to a London newspaper representative:

"The most baffling thing is that no writings relating to these kings have yet been found. 'If I could find some writings in the tombs I am going to open it would give a real clue as to the origin of these people.'"

Appeals To Canadian People

Governer-General Asks Co-Operation To Solve Economic Problem

An appeal to private philanthropy to sustain the efficiency of Canadian social services in the critical 12 months to come, was issued by the Earl of Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada.

"When war, shipwreck, fire, earthquake—when such overwhelming disasters threaten man, then the very evidence calls forth courage and daring; his excellency declared. "But the insidious growing fear of economic insecurity has a fatal tendency to undermine those very qualities, so necessary to the strength of a great nation."

"Men become, as the Prince of Wales himself has said, 'sick at heart from prolonged idleness; and the only remedy, he has reminded us, is that each and all of us should 'get together wherever the burden lies heaviest, face the most urgent local need, and see if the community on the spot cannot make its own self-directed contribution' to a problem as such, and so urgent that, in his opinion, the very future of Canada may be said to depend."

Sounds Like Good Idea

Punishment For Careless Drivers Suggested By Scott Editor

Jim Curran, editor of the "Daily Star," proposes a new brand of "red" not "Reds." His suggestion is to compel every motorist who is convicted of careless driving to display a red card for 30 days on his car, thus informing the public that he is a bad driver and open to the scorn of everyone. "This," says the Toronto "Star" Leader, "is a dandy suggestion and would be a fitting punishment to the guilty one. 'Jim' does not at all believe the badge should be worn by a bad driver out by suggesting that it be a red one foot square—Lethbridge Herald."

Because of cheap wages here, lumbago is again taking the place of machinery on farms in Guatemala.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful, falls in love with Peter Anson, fellow student in an art school. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, and he is a poor, struggling sculptor. On their first date Peter spends most of his money to show Camilla a good time, and then decides he must give her up because he cannot stand the financial strain. A chance meeting, however, paves the way for another date. This time they walk in the park. Camilla tells Peter that she is not rich; or, at least, will not inherit the Hoyt fortune. Peter in turn confesses he is practically penniless. They fall into each other's arms. Together, in the park, Peter and Camilla try to arrive at some plan for the future. Mrs. Hoyt, Camilla's foster mother, suspects from Camilla's actions that a romance is brewing. She is anxious to see Camilla well off. Mrs. Hoyt immediately begins to question the girl about the interest Peter is showing her. She manages to be present on one occasion when Peter calls for Camilla, but the latter's clever stage management thwarts her plan.

Now On On With The Story

CHAPTER XI

The art school reception was a gay affair—a gesture of youth to capture and hold the last drop of freedom and irresponsibility before it took up the grave problems of life and maturity. Balloons decorated with clever and facetious sketches floated above the dancers. Some of them were tied to the girl's arms and some had escaped to rest gleefully against the ceiling. Costumed entertainers mingled with the guests and added hilarity to the intermissions.

It was the first time Camilla and Peter had danced together since the first and last extravaganza which had almost ruined Peter. He never had recovered from it and was financially anxious, but he would not admit to Camilla how serious his situation was.

Tonight, he resolutely dismissed his anxieties and abandoned himself to the delight of holding her in his arms, his face resting against her fragrant hair that was like the twilight dusk hovering above a cloud of lace-rose. He left her regretfully to meet the obligations of courtesy dances.

Always, he would have to be a social diplomat for the sake of his career, Camilla understood that—hence her! She seemed to understand everything, he thought fondly. Capable little thing, who worked problems out for herself. Life had mocked her, landed her a serious problem and said, "Now, what will you do about that?" With a flash of her black eyes and a stare of determination, she accepted the challenge. Now, he had complicated her problem, and she had accepted that in the same spirit. Brave little thing!

Sometimes, he half decided that he would make things easier for her by dropping out of her life. Some fell low with money would be glad to take care of her. But that was the trouble, she wouldn't let anyone do that—not when she loved someone else. And that other person whom she loved was Peter—himself. So he accepted the miraculous fact, and hoped for the best.

Of course, Camilla never lacked for partners while he danced with other girls. He was glad of that, and resented it, too. It seemed to him that too many fellows stood in the stables, waiting to cut in and force him to relinquish her loveliness into their arms. Taking the girl you loved to a dance was like everything else—you got what you wanted and at the same time had to take something else you didn't like so well, and make the best of it.

Just now, his philanthropy was devoted to Avis Werth, whose object in attending National was what Peter had suspected first of Camilla. She had time on her hands and money in her purse, and nothing to do but look for an eligible man. No doubt anyone would have qualified, but just now her hopes favored Peter. He was the kind of man women lose their heads over, anyway, and their hearts. He was the kind for which women contrived special traps and offered generous concessions of principle for bait, on the chance of turning him into their possession.

Contrary to most men's vain beliefs, few of them select the women they want for wives, anyway. A woman finds her man and goes about it to get him. She stops at nothing. Whether she is sophisticated or naive or fibred, it makes no difference. Only her methods differ—subtle or clumsy or else—she gets her man.

"If You Win, It Will Have To Be On Your Merits"

Being sophisticated, Avis was subtle. She gave her body to the sensuous rhythm of the music. Vestation turned to a cloud of lace-rose. He wandered about the crowded room, seeking for Camilla. His lack of interest piqued Avis. She knew for whom his eyes were searching. But she also knew the vulnerable spot of Peter's interest. It was not in his head. Furthermore, she knew that Peter hadn't a dollar in the world. But that was of no consequence. Ambrose Werth controlled an impressive fortune, most of which he would settle upon his only daughter.

Having everything else in the world, Avis' sole ambition was a husband. Preferably a handsome one, and if his ambitions promised fame and a fortune of his own eventually, there could be no objection to that. She knew Peter's ambitions. If feminine appeals were not bait enough, she could add flavor that was more alluring, perhaps.

"You are planning to enter the National exhibit, aren't you, Peter?" she turned her face close to his, intimately, and her intention implied that she shared his most personal affairs.

"Yes, of course," his reply brought his attention back from the search for Camilla.

"Did you know that my uncle has been appointed to the scholarship committee?" she asked triumphantly.

"No," he replied fondly. "Which one is your uncle? I have the new literature from the foundation."

"Mr. Danforth. His influence could do a lot for you, Peter," confidentially.

He became more aloof, suddenly. His action was not perceptible to others, but Avis was resentfully aware of it, and made some resolutions of her own. He said sharply, "I don't care about influences. All I ask is fair judgment in any contest I enter."

"Of course," she agreed sulkily. "But are—you know, Peter, that prejudices always influence the judgment of art. No two critics see a picture or a play or a book or a piece of sculpture with the same measure of appreciation. The measure is gauged by mental reactions, and you can't escape that fact."

"Mental reactions are all right, but mental prejudices have nothing to do with fair judgment."

"That depends," she observed aloud, and added in her thoughts, "who influences those mental prejudices. I'll have you eating from my hand, yet, Peter Anson, if you want that Paris scholarship."

"Well, I can't be responsible for all the mental reactions of the judgment committee, any more than the other entrants can. I'll just have to take my chances along with the rest," he smiled ruefully.

His smile tantalized her, without intention on his part. It was the kind of smile that unconsciously conveys a personal confidence. It betrayed him, unwittingly, to this woman who adored him and coveted his attention. Her lips answered his smile and almost touched his for she was taller than Camilla, to whom he had to incline his head to meet her face. Avis whispered, "I intend to be responsible for a few reactions in your favor."

He shrugged indifferently. "Nice of

From Napoleon's Tomb

Cutting From Willow Tree Growing On Michigan Estate

A willow tree with an unusual history grows on the property of the Mathias Ulenbruch estate at Port Huron, Michigan. The history is explained by a plate on the tree reading:

"The parent tree from which this willow sprang grew over the tomb of Napoleon Bonaparte in the Island of St. Helena. Cutting from the parent was brought to America and planted at the World's Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. A branch from that tree is this present monument."

The late Mathias Ulenbruch, then head gardener at the Detroit House of Correction, attended the Philadelphia Exposition and brought the cutting back to the prison. Later he transplanted the young sapling to his greenhouses in Port Huron.

A root set in the finest soil in the best climate, and blessed with all that the sun and air and rain can do for it, is not in so sure a way of its growth to perfection as every man may be whose spirit reaches after all that which God is ready and infinitely desirous of giving him. For the sun meets not the springing bud that stretches toward him with half the certainty as God, the source of all good, communicates Himself to the soul who longs to partake of Him.—Wm. Law.

If we stand in the openings of the present moment, with all the strength and breadth of our faculties unobscured by what it reveals, we are in the best condition to receive what God is always ready to communicate.—T. C. Upham.
